Schmidt Bows Out, Style Showing Last Speech to Bundestag Ends With Appeal to Reason

By James M. Markham
New York Times Service
BONN — Helmut Schmidt, who graced the Bundestag with his oratorical power and acerbic wit for 33 years, gave his last speech to the chamber on Wednesday.

Schmidt, 70, who had been the former chancellor for more than 20 years, spoke for 45 minutes, a record for a Bundestag speech. He spoke in a calm, measured tone, a far cry from the fiery rhetoric of his earlier years.

He thanked Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who had succeeded him in 1982, and then turned to the future. He spoke of the challenges ahead and the need for reason and compromise.

Chile Bans 2 Foreign News Agencies; 2 More Leftists Are Abducted, Slain

The Associated Press
SANTIAGO — The Chilean government has banned two international news agencies under the new 90-day state of siege, one for using what was described as inappropriate language and the other for alleged bias.

The London-based news agency Reuters was banned on Monday, and the Santiago office of the Italian news agency ANSA was closed Tuesday.

The state-of-siege decree was issued Sunday after an attempt to assassinate President Augusto Pinochet.

Meanwhile, two more men linked to the political left were reported to have been abducted and killed, raising the toll since the assassination attempt to three.

The two new victims were identified by relatives as Gaston Vidaranga, 30, a schoolteacher, and Felipe Segura Rivera, 40, a government-employed machanic.

The police said they had no knowledge about the deaths of the two men.

Early Monday, José Carrasco, 41, a former political exile who worked for an opposition magazine, Análisis, was taken from his police officers. His body was found Monday night outside a suburban Santiago cemetery. He had been shot in the head.

The Interior Ministry confirmed Mr. Carrasco's death. It said it had not ordered his arrest.

The government announced Tuesday that at least 16 dead had been picked up in the military crackdown.

Dual Release Could Cool Tension, Daniloff Says

By Andrew Rosenthal
The Associated Press
MOSCOW — Nicholas Daniloff, the American journalist detained by the Soviet Union, believes that releasing him and a Soviet citizen imprisoned in New York to their embassies would help ease the international uproar over the espionage charges filed against him, his wife said Wednesday.

Ruth Daniloff said her husband mentioned the idea Tuesday as he visited him at Lefortovo prison in Moscow for the third time since he was arrested Aug. 30.

Mr. Daniloff was detained after Soviet authorities gave him a packet that, according to the Soviet authorities, contained secret documents.

Mr. Daniloff also said his wife that the charges filed against him Sunday by a military tribunal consisted of three counts that roughly corresponded to the charges filed Tuesday against Gennadi F. Zakharov, a Soviet employee at the United Nations in New York.

Mr. Daniloff said that his husband was convinced that the Soviet Union was not holding him as a "mirror" of the Zakharov case.

3 Killed as Israel Bombs Industrial Area in Sidon

By Nora Boustany
Washington Post Service
SIDON, Lebanon — Israeli helicopter gunships devastated an industrial district on the southern edge of this port city early Wednesday, killing three persons and injuring a dozen others.

Despite a report on the Israeli radio that an arms depot had been hit, the bombing strike narrowly missed an ammunition dump.

Friends of Frank Reed, the American seized in Beirut, said his whereabouts were unknown.

They have missed a U.S. plane that landed in Beirut, said a spokesman for the U.S. military.

A street in Sidon was devastated by Israel's attack Wednesday.

Negotiators Press for Taba Accord, Expect Summit 'If All Goes Well'

The Associated Press
CAIRO — An Israeli negotiator said that "if all goes well" the Egyptian-Israeli agreement on resolving the Taba dispute was to be signed Wednesday.

Richard W. Murphy, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, met with Mr. Abdel Meguid at the Foreign Ministry.

Mr. Murphy was quoted in a magazine interview published Wednesday in Cairo as saying he hoped the summit meeting — which would be the first with Mr. Mubarak — would lay the groundwork for a Middle East peace agreement.

Mr. Peres was to turn over power to Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir under a rotation agreement next month, was quoted as saying the meeting must begin Thursday or it will not be held at all.

For U.S. Women, a Dark Side to Success

By Claudia H. Deutsch
New York Times Service
NEW YORK — Psychologists say corporate America is rife with women who are experiencing the dark side of their own success and managing it in eating disorders, emotional abuse and other forms of self-destructive behavior.

These women, the experts say, cannot cope with the toll their success has taken on the other part of their lives. They have found that juggling the jobs of wife, mother, social butterfly and executive is more exhausting than exhilarating.

They have lost control over their lives, and progress cannot compensate for the loss.

The result, according to Susan Y. Bidwell, a psychologist on the staff of the Metropolitan Clinic of Counseling in Minneapolis, which treats executives on referral from local companies, is that "more executive women are showing up for community programs on stress."

Worries, it seems, have responded to stress in ways strikingly different from men.

Indonesian Critical Of U.S. on Sanctions

By Michael Richardson

SINGAPORE — The refusal of the Reagan administration to impose economic sanctions on South Africa is contributing to anti-Americanism among members of the Nonaligned Movement and detracting from U.S. efforts to gain support for its policies on Cambodia and Afghanistan, Indonesian foreign minister said Wednesday.

Mochtar Kusumastarmaja, returning from last week's meeting of the organization in Zimbabwe, said U.S. policy was making it difficult to change attitudes about the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

During the meeting in Zimbabwe, which ended Sunday, only a few countries, including Singapore, Malaysia and Pakistan, attacked the 101-member movement's failure to criticize the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

Mr. Mochtar said that attitudes on those issues were "very much colored" by the South African situation.

Mr. Mochtar said U.S. reluctance to impose strong sanctions on Pretoria was being widely interpreted as an indirect way of supporting white South Africans.

Mr. Mochtar, whose country was a founding member of the Nonaligned Movement, said he believed that if the Reagan administration applied more pressure for reform in South Africa, "you might see the attitude of the movement change also."

He said, "I don't think such an anti-American bias would be current if U.S. policy on South Africa was different."

The Nonaligned Movement has frequently been criticized by the United States for adopting a double standard in attacking U.S. policies abroad while not criticizing the Soviet Union.

Mr. Mochtar said that Indonesia had acted to act as host in 1989 for the next meeting of the Nonaligned Movement, and then chair the organization for the following three years.

He said that Nicaragua had made a similar offer and that the Movement had been unable to choose between the competing bids. He said there would be a special session of foreign ministers in Cyprus in 1988 to resolve the issue.

Mrs. King Meets Boesak After Snub Of Botha

By William Claiborne

Washington Post Service

JOHANNESBURG — The U.S. civil rights activist Coretta Scott King met Wednesday with the Reverend Alan Boesak, an anti-apartheid leader, and planned a meeting with Winnie Mandela, both of whom were instrumental in Mrs. King's decision to cancel a meeting Tuesday with President Pieter W. Botha.

Mrs. King, the widow of the late Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights leader who was assassinated in 1968, is scheduled to visit the black township of Soweto on Thursday, where she is expected to meet with Mrs. Mandela, the wife of Nelson Mandela, the imprisoned leader of the outlawed African National Congress.

After Mrs. King's brief meeting in Cape Town with Mr. Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, a spokesman for Mrs. King said the "meeting went very well."

Mr. Boesak, who along with Mrs. Mandela had threatened to refuse to see Mrs. King if she went through with a planned meeting with Mr. Botha, called her decision to snub the South African president "very courageous," according to Mrs. King's spokesman, Ollie Dukes.

After the 30-minute meeting, Mr. Boesak said, "I wanted her to know that she had not only my support, but all those who I represent."

Mrs. King first angered militant black nationalists by initially agreeing to meet with Mr. Botha, and then upset moderate anti-apartheid leaders by failing to show up at the meeting and present her case for effective black participation in government.

Threat to Schools

The South African government threatened to shut schools where student boycotts persist, but attendance was reported as only spotty Wednesday as black students returned to class for the final term of the year. The Associated Press reported from Johannesburg.

Residents said they saw no troops on school grounds in Soweto, the sprawling black township of Johannesburg, for the first time since a nationwide state of emergency was imposed in June. Students had demanded withdrawal of security forces as a condition for returning to school.

Some youths were returning to classes in Soweto after a 10-day vacation, but it appeared many were staying away in defiance of Tuesday's threat of closure, according to reporters who toured the township.

Case Against Zakharov

Water Pines of The Washington Post reported from Washington.

A Justice Department spokesman said that Mr. Zakharov's arrest was set for Sept. 19. It is the same day that Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Edward A. Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister, are scheduled to begin talks on a possible summit meeting between Mr. Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev.

Mr. Zakharov was arrested Aug. 23 on a subway platform in Queens, New York, after receiving three classified documents from a source who was working with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Mr. Zakharov, who has a doctorate in physics and mathematics, was once an exchange student in the United States, according to the FBI, and worked for the Soviet State Committee for Science and Technology from 1979 to 1980.

According to the Justice Department, Zakharov was a member of the KGB and was in the ways of the clandestine FBI. He has been under FBI surveillance since December 1982, when he came to the United States as a scientist's reflection officer in the FBI.

In April 1983, according to the FBI, Mr. Zakharov "approached" a third-year student at Queens College who was majoring in computer science.

Mr. Zakharov described himself as a UN employee and told the student, who was from Russia but has yet to be identified, that he was doing research on robotics and computer technology, the FBI said.

Mr. Zakharov offered the student money for research information, the agency added.

They continued to meet until the student graduated from the college in January 1985, the FBI said. The bureau said Mr. Zakharov paid the student for microfilm of computer data that he had stolen from libraries and information centers.

Mr. Zakharov paid to have the student's resume prepared and encouraged him to get a job with a high-technology company, it alleged.

In September 1985, the student was hired by a company in Queens that manufactured "unclassified precision components for use in military engines and in radars," according to the FBI.

The student provided some unclassified materials "pertaining generally to the maintenance and manufacture of components of military aircraft engines," according to the FBI, and entered into a formal agreement to provide information to Mr. Zakharov for money.

The FBI said it decided last month to provide three documents with low classifications that the student could give to Mr. Zakharov.

WORLD BRIEFS

Iraq Reports New Air Raid on Tabriz

BAGHDAD (Reuters) — Iraq said Wednesday that its planes had raided a large refinery in the north Iranian city of Tabriz for the second time in 24 hours.

A military spokesman said the aircraft had returned safely to base after attacking the refinery, 330 miles (230 kilometers) north of Tehran. He said other jets hit a military camp at Mahabad, 218 miles northwest of Tehran, destroying munitions and equipment, and inflicting heavy casualties.

Iraq said Tuesday that its planes had attacked the refinery, a power station and air defense positions at Tabriz, as well as military targets on the Iranian border. Iranian reports have said that more than 30 civilians were killed in the raids on Tuesday.

Aquino Receives Support of Ministers

MANILA (UPI) — President Corason C. Aquino, who is preparing to leave for an eight-day visit to the United States, received expressions of support on Wednesday from his squabbling ministers and the armed forces.

The Armed Forces of the Philippines and the chief of staff, General Fidel V. Ramos, pledged "to support fully, to remain constantly under, and to respond faithfully to civilian authority." The government has been plagued by dissident forces on policy toward communist guerrillas and there have been other jabs for the resignation of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile.

Vice President Salvador H. Laurel, who also is foreign minister, assured Mrs. Aquino at a cabinet meeting of "the unity of all the members of the cabinet" and said that would be "a guarantee of full support" for her during her U.S. trip, said the presidential press secretary, Teodoro Benigno.

U.S. Assails Soviet on Chemical Arms

GENEVA (NYT) — The United States has called on Moscow to respond to allegations that it violated a 1972 treaty banning biological weapons. U.S. allegations that the Soviet Union had maintained an offensive biological warfare program and had been involved in production and use of toxins for "hostile purposes" in Laos, Cambodia and Afghanistan were reiterated Tuesday by Donald Levine, U.S. chief of the U.S. delegation to an international conference reviewing the status of the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention.

The chief Soviet delegate to the conference, Viktor I. Israel, denied the allegations, saying that they were aimed at disrupting the three-week conference. The meeting, which opened Monday, is to review compliance with the treaty and study ways of strengthening its provisions, particularly its articles on verification.

KHARTOUM, Sudan (Reuters) — Colonel Muammar Gadhafi, the Libyan leader, has promised to try to persuade the Sudanese rebel leader, Colonel John Garang, and Eritrean backers to end a three-year-old guerrilla war in southern Sudan.

Colonel Gadhafi told a rally here Tuesday night that he was concerned over threats by the Sudan government to use increased armed forces to end the rebellion.

He pledged to persuade Colonel Garang, whom he described as "a struggler and not an imperialist agent," to stop hostilities. The Libyan leader also said he would appeal to Eritreans, the main backer of the rebel group, to help end the fighting.

Reagan Urges Brazil to Open Markets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan received President Joao Sarney of Brazil at the White House on Wednesday and urged him to open his nation's markets to foreign products.

At a welcoming ceremony, Mr. Reagan said, "No nation can expect to continue freely exporting its own products if its own markets are closed to foreign competition." Mr. Reagan made clear the American unhappiness with Brazil's protectionist policies. "Prosperity must be built not on the expense of others but on the principle of mutual benefit," he said.

In his remarks, Mr. Sarney made no mention of Brazil's criticism of U.S. trade policies, emphasizing instead the progress his country has made in its economic and democratic development over the past 18 months. "We are now back on our feet," he said.

SCHMIDT: The Farewell Speech

ratified, and the fabric of existing treaties was unraveling.

Back to Mr. Kohl, he shot out: "Why, I ask you, don't you put the SDI question and the whole arms control question at the top of the alliance agenda? You say away from representing our German interests to our American friends?"

There was powerful irony in the repeated omissions for Mr. Schmidt from the Social Democratic deputies. At the end of his eight-year tenure as chancellor, leftist Social Democrats undermined Mr. Schmidt's authority by rebelling against his Atlanticist foreign policy, opposing in particular his determination to counter Soviet SS-20 missiles with U.S. medium-range systems in Western Europe.

At a party congress last month at Nuremberg, the Social Democratic leftists triumphantly pushed through security policies that were such anathema to Mr. Schmidt that he abstained himself from the debate. The "Schmidt wing" of the party has been reduced to impotent silence; its standard-bearer will not be running from Hamburg in January's elections.

If anything, Mr. Schmidt's ideological isolation within his own party sharpened the poignancy of his testament Wednesday.

Mr. Schmidt sought to strike a balance of what the Federal Republic had accomplished since emerging from the ruins of the Third Reich. It was a positive one. "Who would have predicted the success we have today?" he said. "Who from my generation could have conceived of this freedom that we today so self-confidently use? Who could have predicted the degree of political and social order that we have achieved, given the chaos in which we then lived?"

Finally, to a people that has been misled by excesses in this century, he pleaded for reason, or, in German, vernunft. Young people must have ideals, he said, but idealism cannot be romantic but must be rooted in vernunft. He called for "an ethos of political pragmatism with moral limits."

"Whoever wants to reach a distant goal," cautioned Mr. Schmidt, "must take many small steps." He then took his seat, surrounded by colleagues who rose in ovation; he tapped out a pinch of black snuff onto the back of his left hand, and motioned it into his nostrils.

After 10 Years, Mao's Ideas Are Gone but Not Quite Forgotten

By Daniel Southard

Washington Post Service
BEIJING — Ten years after the death of Mao Zedong, his body still lies at the center of Beijing. But his doctrines no longer seem central to the new directions that China is taking.

Most of the thousands of people who visit Mao's mausoleum each day show little emotion for the leader who was once worshiped as a god in the Chinese capital.

"If Mao hadn't started the Cultural Revolution, we'd be a lot better off now," said one man, referring to the chaotic period of 1966 to 1976 when artists, scholars and other intellectuals were ruthlessly suppressed in an attempt to revitalize Maoist revolutionary values. Some Chinese intellectuals who once might have been afraid to utter a single negative word about Mao now refer to him as an "old man" who knew nothing about economics, disrupted the country's modernization and subjected intellectuals to persecution in an attempt to regain power that was slipping away.

That anyone would speak up in this way is a sign of how much China has opened up to new ideas in the last 10 years. The Chinese in-the cities are a much more assertive, disputatious, competitive and, in some ways, uncertain people. Ask Chinese intellectuals what has changed most and they are likely to say that there is less fear. "If Mao were alive today, I wouldn't be visiting my home," said a scientist who recently invited several foreigners to his Beijing apartment for an informal luncheon.

"Nowadays, I can complain about things," said a university lecturer in economics. "I can complain that prices are too high. I can even complain about more than that."

But the scientist and the lecturer both said that their names not be disclosed, a sign that fears still linger. Many Chinese are reluctant to meet with foreign journalists or diplomats unless they have official approval.

Much has changed, yet much remains the same. Despite new proposals for "democratizing" the decision-making process, a small number of people at the top of the Communist Party still make the most important decisions.

Despite a campaign begun three years ago to rid the party of bureaucracy and corruption, party cadres still resist changes that would curtail their power and privileges.

Despite a proposed labor reform now in its initial stages, which is supposed to provide both managers and workers with a greater freedom of choice in job assignments, the party still has the final word on assigning most jobs.

The official line on Mao set down by Deng Xiaoping, China's top leader, and other party officials in a June 1981 party resolution is that as the great and indispensable leader of the revolution, he made contributions that far outweighed his errors.

But the resolution goes on in some detail to describe Mao's "grave mistakes" in both the Cultural Revolution and the Great Leap Forward of the 1950s.

While pledging to keep Mao's portrait on the Tiananmen gate in the center of Beijing forever, Mr. Deng has dismantled the myth of Mao.

Mr. Deng and other senior officials know the danger of trying to demolish the mythology of Mao altogether. To do so would raise questions about the very legitimacy of Communist Party rule.

In certain pockets of the country and in certain segments of the People's Liberation Army, there is still a nostalgic attachment to the Maoist era. That sentiment is also being used to exist at certain middle and lower levels of the bureaucracy.

For now, that may be Mao's main legacy. Certainly, among the younger generation in China's cities his memory is fading fast. Almost within the shadow of the young man, the more daring of the almost Chinese are dressing, bargaining and flirting in individualistic ways that would have shocked Mao.

The "mass line" favored by Mao is giving way to more variety, and not just in clothing. Mr. Deng and his allies have allowed something approaching a real debate over economics to take place in the press.

Professor Li Yining at Beijing University has been calling for the establishment of more enterprises controlled by stockholders, an idea that could have landed him in a prison camp in the Maoist era.

Mr. Deng has even spoken of the need to reform the political system, including a possible decentralization of power, although this idea appears to have encountered considerable resistance from high-level Communist Party conservatives.

He has encouraged cautious steps to create a legal system that would, in theory, provide China's citizens with a less arbitrary set of rules by which to live.

Chinese intellectuals say, however, that these steps have fallen short of changing the way authority is exercised. This is still a nation that operates not so much through laws as through personal relationships, they say.

But what Mr. Deng and his colleagues have accomplished is the easiest part of their reform program. They have freed difficult issues, involving prices, wages, finances and labor contracts, for the first time in Mao's era, to be in a position to offer answers.

Rebel Drive On Kabul Is Reported

The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Moslem guerrillas are mounting a major offensive against the Afghan capital of Kabul, and Soviet and government forces are responding with waves of jets and tanks, according to government, guerrilla and diplomatic reports.

Guerrilla groups based in the Pakistani border city of Peshawar said Wednesday that their units had been locked in heavy fighting for the past week in the Paghman district, about 12 miles (20 kilometers) north of the capital. There was also fighting in Qandahar to the south of the city, they said.

"There is much fighting and the situation is not so good, but we have little information," said Mohammed Eshah of the Yunis Khalis guerrilla group.

The Communist government of Afghanistan claimed in radio broadcasts Wednesday that its forces had defeated the guerrillas in the fighting in the Paghman district and inflicted heavy losses.

Western diplomatic sources reported Tuesday that there had been heavy fighting in Paghman since Sept. 4, and waves of jets had been sent bombing the hills as armored columns moved into the region under the cover of helicopter gunships.

Artillery and rocket forces had laid down enormous barrages and the city of Paghman had suffered considerable damage, they said.

Few reports were coming out of Afghanistan because of the long trip by foot for guerrilla couriers, but the various groups said it appeared that both sides were suffering considerable losses.

The Afghan Information Center in Peshawar said the guerrillas were mounting a series of rocket and mortar attacks on the capital and assaulting government defense positions around the city. The guerrilla attacks appeared to be well coordinated and prepared, officials at the center said.

Confusion Reportedly Delayed Hijackers' Capture

By Rone Tempess

KARACHI, Pakistan — Seven different Pakistani officials were involved in making decisions and giving orders during last week's seizure of a Pan Am jumbo jet, according to government and diplomatic sources.

The resulting confusion apparently delayed the reaction by army commanders when the four hijackers began firing at the passengers, the sources said Tuesday.

The officials, including military and police commanders, elected leaders, the country's civil aviation director and the provincial governor, also failed to act on a warning from Pan Am executives that the plane's generator would probably fail.

When the generator ran out of fuel and the cabin lights dimmed, the hijackers apparently panicked and began shooting.

Confusion over who was in charge, in part caused by Pakistan's recent emergence from eight years of martial law, led to key communication failures and later to the circulation of misinformation about what happened in the last moments of the hijacking, the sources said.

While authorities here initially reported, for example, that army commanders had moved about the aircraft and captured it immediately after the hijacking started firing, it has since become clear that the commandos did not approach the plane until from 3 to 15 minutes after the attack.

The passengers who escaped the plane by jumping off the wings or sliding down evacuation chutes were helped only by cabin attendants and, in at least one case, opened a door themselves.

The most glaring communication breakdown involved the generator, an auxiliary power unit, that provides lighting and air conditioning while a Boeing 747 is on the ground.

Officials of Pan American World Airways here and in the United States insist that they told some Pakistani officials at the airport that the power unit would fail sometime Friday evening, but other authorities said they were never advised.

Governor Jahangir Khan of Sind province said Tuesday that he had been told of the possibility that the power unit would fail. He was the senior official at the airport during the 16 hours the hijacking was in progress.

The sudden failure of the power unit caught Governor Khan and some of the other officials by surprise. At the time, according to several sources, at least some of the commandos brought in to mount a rescue operation were a considerable distance away from the plane, carrying out a practice exercise on a Pakistan International Airlines 747.

"I think it was just a case of the right hand not knowing what the left hand was doing," a diplomatic source said.

All of the passengers interviewed here said they had seen no sign of commandos or policemen when they reached the ground.

"When we came out, there was nobody," said Clarence Maloney, 52, of Mountair, New Jersey.

Nonetheless, some Pakistani officials announced that the commandos, elements of the army's Special Operations Group under the command of Brigadier Tariq Mahmud, had stormed the plane and freed the passengers. Brigadier Mahmud said his commandos arrived at the plane two minutes after the hijackers opened fire.

Air Marshal Khurshid Awan Mirza, Pakistan's director of civil aviation, who served as official spokesman during the incident, said the power unit failure and the consequent dimming of the lights had been the signal for army commandos units to advance.

Marshal Mirza also said the commandos had killed two of the hijackers.

The next day, another official, Brigadier Tariq Raft, the commander of the airport security force, said none of the hijackers had been killed.

"The problem is we had too many versions from various authorities," said Wajid Shamsul Haque, editor of the Karachi newspaper the Daily Mail and one of the many journalists trying to sort out the contradictions.

According to Mr. Haque, much of the misinformation might be attributed to a scramble to take credit for what appeared at first to be a successful rescue mission.

"I think they thought they had done something big with minimal casualties," Mr. Haque said, "and then, when they came to know the number of injured and dead, they began to have afterthoughts."

The officials involved in the hijacking often offered directly contradictory reports on the same events, perhaps another sign that the line of command had become blurred.

Brigadier Mahmud said it had taken only two minutes for commandos to arrive after the hijacking started. Governor Khan said Tuesday that the actual response time had been six to seven minutes.

Marshal Mirza first said that the commandos had arrived at the plane immediately, later he contended that they had been as much as 15 minutes late. Two days after the incident, he said they had been only a few minutes late.

In addition, to Brigadier Raft, other officials involved in making decisions and giving orders in the course of the incident were Lieutenant General Ahmad Shahnai, army corps commander for the Karachi district; Chief Minister Jous Ali Shah, the senior elected official of Sind province; and Zain Nisami, the minister of state for foreign affairs.

Mr. Noorani and Mr. Ali Shah were in Sukkur, 200 miles (325 kilometers) north of Karachi, when the hijacking took place. They flew immediately to Karachi to help decide how to deal with it.

EUROPEAN REAL ESTATE ACQUISITION MANAGER

Digital Equipment Corporation is one of the world's leading computer companies. Our European Headquarters in Geneva provide managerial, administrative and technical support to 18 European subsidiaries.

We are looking for a Real Estate Acquisition Manager who will be responsible for the proposal, acquisition and pre-construction development of adequate and appropriate buildings and/or land to meet the corporation's needs in Europe for Sales/Service, Engineering and Manufacturing facilities.

You will be a Chartered Surveyor, or have a degree in a closely related field. You will have, at least, 9 to 12 years of commercial and industrial real estate experience, including a minimum of 5 years in continental Europe. You will have strong negotiation and communication skills, and have a sound knowledge of real estate financing methods. In addition to English, you will also be fluent in either French or German (ideally both).

Success factors in this position will be not only your professional qualities, but also having the personality to forge strong, effective working relationships with a variety of internal and external people at all levels of management.

This job offers a challenge to work across Europe with a dynamic company, together with the salary and fringe benefits expected from a major international organization. Relocation assistance where appropriate.

Please send your resumé, in English, to Mrs Hennie Pols.

European Training & Development Manager

London base
circa £30,000 + car

As one of the foremost management consultancy practices, we are committed to continued growth and development in its broadest sense. The training and management development role is therefore crucial to sustain our success.

With offices throughout the world, our European interests and activities are integrated through the Pan European Consultancy. This new position will carry responsibility for interpreting current and future business needs throughout the 20 countries comprising the European practice and producing, co-ordinating and delivering high quality training and development programmes.

Your performance will be judged by the direct commercial relevance of such initiatives, as recognised by territorial practice leaders and a key facet of this role will therefore be to identify and 'sell' the benefits of development and training. This will involve travel to our practice offices throughout Europe.

Ideally you will be in your middle to late 30's and of graduate status. You will certainly have an excellent track record in developing and delivering both business services and training material applicable to senior management or within a professional management consultancy environment. Knowledge of other European languages will also be of advantage.

Compensation will not be a limiting factor for the right candidate and other benefits will include company car, pension and BUPA.

HEAD OF ASIA REGION

Amnesty International needs a Head of the Asia Region of the Research Department based in London, after the promotion of the previous Head. The work of the department includes investigating and documenting human rights violations in the region and preparing initiatives to be taken by Amnesty International in relation to prisoners of conscience, trial procedures, the treatment of prisoners and the death penalty.

The Head of Region supervises 22 staff on strategy and techniques for action and research; approves texts and actions prepared by the research staff; advises on policy matters; and has immediate responsibility for various administrative, budgetary and personnel matters.

Candidates must have sound political judgment and extensive knowledge of the Asia region, with a specialist knowledge of one sub-region. Experience or demonstrable ability in supervising specialists is necessary, as is the ability to communicate well in English both orally and in writing and to represent Amnesty International externally. Knowledge of an Asian language and/or another European language would be an asset.

Salary: £13530.93 rising to £16332.27 (indexed linked, annual increments)

Closing date: 31 October 1986

DEPUTY HEAD OF RESEARCH

Amnesty International needs a Deputy Head of its Research Department. The Department has over 110 staff and is responsible for gathering and assessing information on Amnesty International's concerns around the world and for developing and maintaining programs of action. The Deputy Head will have a direct management role as regards both programs and administrative matters. S/he will contribute to the formulation and implementation of policies, and maintenance of the quality and impartiality of Amnesty International's material as set out in its Statute.

The Deputy Head of Research is responsible for supervising the work on refugees and giving of material aid to prisoners, and will take primary responsibility for other policy areas dependent on background, skills and expertise. S/he will be required to represent Amnesty International externally. S/he is a member of the senior management team of the International Secretariat as a whole.

Candidates must have sound political judgment and a wide knowledge of the political, economic and legal situation in different parts of the world. S/he must have demonstrable ability, and preferably experience, of management and of initiating and implementing policies. S/he must be able to work in an international and multicultural environment, and must have fluent English. Knowledge of other languages would be an asset.

Salary: £15211.73 rising to £18103.07 (index linked, annual increments)

Closing date: 31 October 1986

HUMAN RIGHTS IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Amnesty International needs an Executive Assistant to work in the Middle East region of the Research Department. S/he is primarily responsible for liaison with Amnesty International groups related to the human rights concerns within the region and recommended actions on behalf of prisoners.

A background knowledge of the area and good Arabic and English are essential, as is the ability to type. Knowledge of French is desirable. Candidates must be able to work in a team, often under pressure.

Salary: rising from £10169.33 to £12970.67 (index linked, annual increments)

NYSE Lower; Trading Moderate

United Press International
NEW YORK — Prices on the New York Stock Exchange were lower late Wednesday in moderate trading. Traders said prices were being pressured by investors' uncertainties about the direction of interest rates and the economy. The Dow Jones industrial average was down 1.94 to 1,880.20 at 3 P.M. Declines led advances by a 4-3 ratio an hour before the close. Volume at 3 P.M. was about 119.24 million shares, up slightly from 117.24 million in the same period Tuesday.

Prices were lower in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. The market's been in a battle all day," said Jon Grovesman, head of equity trading at Laidlaw, Thalmann & Co.

Mr. Grovesman said that after three days of losses, the strength or weakness of Wednesday's close would be "pivotal." He cited support in the market at 1,880 on the Dow.

Western Airlines was the most active NYSE-listed issue and unchanged. The company announced Tuesday afternoon that it had accepted a $12.50-a-share acquisition bid from Delta Delta was up slightly.

Texas Commerce Bancshares was up a bit. Cerber Products was going. Quaker Oats said it had purchased 4.8 percent of Quaker's stock for investment purposes. Quaker Oats was up. It declared a 24-for-1 stock split and increased its quarterly dividend.

IBM was ahead. Elsewhere in the technology group, Burroughs, Honeywell and Digital Equipment were lower. Cray Research was up. Some consumer-product issues were in retreat after making small gains Tuesday as investors went bargain hunting. PepsiCo and RJR Nabisco were lower.

Pullman was ahead. It announced a 2-for-1 stock split after the market closed Tuesday. Petroleum issues were mostly ahead after breaking Tuesday. Mobil, Atlantic Richfield, Schlumberger and Exxon were ahead. Occidental Petroleum was off slightly.

Gold, Platinum Futures Drop in Profit-Taking

Reuters
NEW YORK — Gold and platinum futures plummeted late Wednesday in profit-taking in New York.

December gold plummeted to $403 an ounce, breaking through Tuesday's low of $413, before coming back to $411. In the morning, December gold had traded up to $406 on news that Switzerland would remove the sales tax on physical gold and coins.

Platinum futures plummeted by the daily limit of $37.50 an ounce. The leading October delivery posted a loss of $37.50 to $390.20 an ounce in a narrow range from a high in the morning of $425.

Analysts felt that the drop in gold accelerated the fall in platinum. Platinum "collapsed by $30 in a matter of three or four minutes," a floor broker said. "There was no buying to slow it down."

ISLAMIC DEVELOPMENT BANK ANNOUNCEMENT

THE ISLAMIC DEVELOPMENT BANK is happy to announce to all pilgrims that, with the help of the Almighty, the rite of sacrificial slaughtering for this year's Hajj has been completed in respect of all pilgrims who participated in the Saudi Arabian project for utilization of sacrificial meat, either through their chosen representatives or through the Supervisory Committee to which authority was delegated by them.

The total number of sacrificial sheep slaughtered during the 1406H Hajj period was 350,140 (three hundred fifty thousand & one hundred & forty). This figure includes the sacrifices performed as part of the Hajj rites ("Hadi") in all its forms, those offered in atonement (Fidya), charity performed as part of the rites of Eid-ul-Adha (Adhhi) and those offered as a voluntary act of charity performed to seek Allah's pleasure (Sadaqa). As compared to last year, this figure represents an increase of 14% in the total number of sheep slaughtered.

A large quantity of sacrificial meat was distributed to Hajjis in Mena and to the poor in Al-Haram area. Even larger quantities have been transported, or are in the process of being transported by air, sea or land to a number of Islamic countries. Details of such shipments are shown in the following statement.

Destination	No. of sheep already dispatched	No. of sheep ready for dispatch	Mode of dispatch	Date
1. Jordan	41571	—	Chilled, overland, 68 trucks	During "Tashreeq" days
2. Syria	10250	—	Chilled, overland, 17 trucks	— do —
3. Chad	6604	—	Chilled, by air, 5 flights	— do —
4. Burkina Faso	4981	—	Chilled, by air, 1 flight	— do —
5. Pakistan (Afghan refugees)	20505	4485	Chilled, by air, 9 flights	— do —
6. Niger	—	5000	Chilled, by air	23/9/86
7. Djibouti	—	12000	Frozen, by sea	5/9/86
8. Yemen PDR	—	12000	Frozen, by sea	8/9/86
9. Sudan	—	12000	Frozen, by sea	10/9/86
10. Egypt	—	15000	Frozen, by sea	17/9/86
11. Bangladesh	—	60000	Frozen, by sea	25/9/86
12. Mauritania	—	6000	Frozen, by sea	1/10/86
13. Senegal	—	6000	Frozen, by sea	9/10/86
14. Mali via Senegal	—	3000	Frozen, by sea	9/10/86
15. Gambia	—	3000	Frozen, by sea	15/10/86
Total	83911	140495
Grand total		224406

The remaining quantity of meat is being frozen in the cold storage facilities of the Moaisim Model Slaughterhouse for distribution to the poor of Al-Haram area throughout the year.

The Supervisory Committee of the Project regrets the inconvenience caused to many pilgrims by the fact that all coupons were completely sold out by the middle of the first day of Eid. It offers its sincere apology to the large number of pilgrims who wished to buy these coupons but were not able to do so. The Committee will endeavour, God Willing, to expand the project next year in order to satisfy a larger number of pilgrims.

Finally, THE ISLAMIC DEVELOPMENT BANK wishes to thank all pilgrims for their confidence and to express its gratitude to the government of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia which provided all the necessary facilities that enabled this important Islamic project to be implemented. May Allah reward all, inspire the Muslim Ummah to act wisely, unite its ranks, consolidate its will, and may He grant it victory.

ALL SUCCESS IS FROM ALLAH

China to Cut 2d-Half Oil Exports

United Press International
BEIJING—China will cut oil exports by 14 million barrels in the second half of this year in a bid to help stabilize world prices, the official Xinhua News Agency said Wednesday.
 Zheng Duxun, president of the China National Chemicals Imports and Exports Corp., announced the cut in support of efforts by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to stabilize oil prices on the world market, Xinhua said.

China's oil exports are expected to total 140 million barrels this year, down from 150 million in 1985. The cut is part of a broader effort to reduce China's dependence on foreign oil and to help stabilize world oil prices. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has been struggling to maintain oil prices at a level that would allow it to meet its debt obligations.

Cycling Into the 1990s:
Or, Peddling in Pursuit
Of Tomorrow's Trend

By Tony Kornheiser
Washington Post Service

WASHINGTON—Admittedly, my track record reveals a certain downslope in sporting ventures. I finally bought a hot seat, and then only because my fondue pot suffered last year, and then this summer, promptly tore the cartilage in my left knee and now face the choice of having arthroscopic surgery or weighing 230 pounds (104 kilograms).

So what it comes down to, is I'm asking you to trust me on this one: Cycling will be the sport of the 90s. (I can't be the sport of the 90s because soccer is the sport of the 90s. Soccer is that game played throughout Europe, South America and parts of Montgomery County, Maryland.) I know cycling is going to be big because so many of the same people I saw jogging five years ago are cycling now. Their expressions are still painful, but now their shorts are longer.

I suspect walking will become the sport of the early 2000s. By then walking will be all that the runners and cyclists of today will be able to do—walk and play shuffleboard. But I digress.

We're here to talk about cycling, bigger than ever now that Greg LeMond has won the Tour de France. Isn't that a great sound, "Tour de France"? Let it roll around your tongue like the first shimmering spoonful of chocolate marmalade.

Since LeMond is such an integral part of the sport of the 90s—as he was to soccer, Frank Thomas to tennis and Nenelek of the North to basketball—there are some things I'd like to know from him. How many times did he see "Breaking Away," and whom did he like best, Cyril or Moocher? Is LeMond his real name or did he change it from LeMond when he went to live in France? And that covered yellow shirt they give the leader after each stage of the tour, is that the same shirt each evening? Do they at least wash it between stages?

There are two kinds of bicycle races: road races and track races. The track races are divided into sprints and pursuits. They all confuse me, and I never know who wins. I can't tell the difference between the national teams and the individual leader.

All I know is that in this race you stand still and get one look as they go by, and in track races they go around and around like record albums. After a month or so they declare a winner, and my advice is to just listen to the national anthem and look for a fly you recognize.

Track races are held at a velodrome. Most people think that "velodrome" means "French word," meaning bike. Some, however, think the word comes from "veloc," which covered the bike on Ricardo Montalban's junk, or from the Shakespearean play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which was a bicycle designer and a little companion, Yago, who invented sailing.

The Phillies' Gary Redus was caught stealing when the ball got to second base, and the Cubs' Ryne Sandberg, before Redus.

VCRs Are Bringing Sports Home to Fans

WASHINGTON—Years ago the devoted sports fan had to listen to accounts of classic athletic events on the radio, then wait for the movie-house newsreels to add graphic pictures to the sound. Later, television enabled some of these events to be seen live.

Now, with the video revolution, these classic moments can become personal possessions. From the slick packaged and stylish edited to the world of video, these treasured moments in sports can be had in cassette form and put on shelves beside the TV set, lying in wait for the next sports antics.

The number of attractive sports tapes is mushrooming. And, more importantly, the quality of some is equal to, if not better than, a number of the movies on the shelves of neighborhood video stores.

No sports-video collection should lack the recently released "16 Days of Glory," a look at the 1984 Olympic Games by Emmy award winning writer and director Bud Greenspan. It lives up to its overselling billing of being the single most inspiring sports film ever created. It is more about people than sports, and the viewer can't help but share in the joy, hope, fears and tears of victory and defeat.

A Video Viewer's Guide to Collecting Tapes

With most sports teams offering annual highlights, there are more than a thousand sports videos available, depending on taste, favorite sport or favorite team. Here is a general idea of what's available for your collection, or for gifts. Write to some of the addresses below for complete lists or catalogs.

NEW YORK—Major league baseball's division races likely ended Tuesday night, in reality if not in third straight victory, since the Seattle Mariners.

In the National League West, the Houston Astros again beat the second-place Cincinnati Reds, this time by 9-2, to take a 10-game lead.

In the American League West, the California Angels moved into an 8½-game lead by beating the Cleveland Indians 8-1, at the second-place Texas Rangers were 3½, to the Seattle Mariners.

In the AL East, the Boston Red Sox took an eight-game lead in five hits for eight innings and drove in three runs during a four-run sixth that ended a scoreless tie.

So far, the Sox have won 10 of 11 games, and the Red Sox manager, Pete Rose, "I'm worried about catching (last place) San Diego the way we're playing."

St. Louis' Cardinals, who were 10½ games behind the Yankees, won their 10th straight game, tying the season high of April.

Cardinals' 3, Pirates 1: In Pittsburgh, the Cardinals won their 10th straight game, tying the season high of April.
